

AYE AYE GENERAL!

GENERAL QUIZ

Are ye a facts fiends always ready to devour knowledge, be it history, geography, general science, politics, economics, sports, agriculture, or just the current events of the world? Quiz it up as ye fight for glory to find out if ye will get up on deck to be the Cap'n or be outed as a landlubber an' be forced to walk the plank.

Team size: 1-3 members

Mode: Offline

Prizes worth 10k

Rules:

- The quiz consists of a written preliminary round followed by on-stage finals for eight qualifying teams.
- The quiz will start upon the arrival of the quiz master. No requests to delay the quiz will be entertained.
- In case of any discrepancy, the word of the quiz master shall be final and binding.
- More than three teams from the same college will not make it to the finals.
- A student can only be a part of one team (for each quiz).

- Tiebreakers and other rules will be announced by the quizmaster.
- In cases of multiple qualifications from the same college, only the best-performing team from that college will be awarded points. All teams will retain and be awarded their positions.
- Use of unfair means will lead to immediate disqualification of that college from the event.

Structure of the quiz:

Round 1 (Prelims):

- This round will consist of subjective-type questions.
- All the registered teams will be provided with blank papers to write their answers on.

Note: Teams are supposed to bring their own pen or pencil for writing answers.

- The questions will be presented on screen by the quiz masters. Teams are supposed to write their answers on the given papers.
- The top eight teams will move on to Round 2.

Round 2 (Final):

- This round will consist of 16 subjective-type questions.

- Format of the quiz:

→ Infinite Bounce.

- Suppose that the teams qualified for Round 2 are A,B,C,D, E, and F ranked by their Round 1 points.
- The first question will be directed to the top-scoring team of round 1, and if they give the correct answer, they will be awarded +10, and no negative marks will be awarded for a direct question.
- If the team passes or gives the wrong answer to the question, it will be asked to the next team in order with a +10 and -5 marking scheme.
- The question will be passed to another team if the B team gives the wrong answer (obviously, they will get a -5) or decides to pass the question. This cycle will continue until all the teams get a chance to answer or the question is answered correctly.

- Don't worry if you are unable to understand. The first 5-10 minutes will be for instructions, the quizmasters will explain the rules of the quiz again.
  - The team with the highest score wins.
