

BIGGEST LIAR

The biggest Liar is a fun event where you will be given a situation and have to lie your way out of it. Here you are open to the world of imagination devoid of any limits. However don't forget, you only have a limited amount of time to form the lie. Your wit and quick thinking will be put to their limits through this event

Team size: 2 members per team

Mode: Offline

Prizes worth

Structure:

- Team size: 2
- The game will be played in the form of a Knockout Tournament i.e. one team will face another team and one of them will get eliminated.
- Teams will be divided into sub-groups randomly at the time of the event and each sub-group will undergo a knockout tournament on a separate google meet.
- Each sub-group will have a winner after which we will have a competition between the winners of the sub-groups to declare the final winners.

Procedure:

- A fixture for sub-groups will be formed (to be remained fixed throughout)
- The first preliminary round will have elimination based on a quiz that every participant will go through.
- After this, the teams that perform well will proceed to the first round of biggest liar and every judge will present his/her screen with a web page with 50 numbers. Behind every number will be a situation/statement
- Let's say team A goes against team B. Team A will then choose a number from the displayed numbers. The situation behind that number will be given to team B. One of the members of team B will have to lie about the statement or get out of the situation by lying about whatever comes his/her way. One of the members of team A will then ask some questions to the lying member of team B about his/her lie or maybe contradict it.
- Now, team B will choose a different number. The situation behind that number will be given to team A. The other person from team A who has not spoken yet has to lie. Now the remaining member of team B who has not spoken yet will ask questions
- Whichever team gets more points moves on to further rounds.

NOTE: A number once chosen by any team in any sub-group cannot be chosen again.
